Welcome to the Information Space!

Challenge

Digitalization and Industry 4.0 are making information increasingly important. Standardized products produced in large quantities are becoming rarer. Customers can choose from a comprehensive range of functions to configure individual products. Saving the associated information in individual documents is becoming unthinkable. At the same time, we want exactly the information we need in every situation; in the right place, at the right time.

INFORMATION SPACE

Our solution

The traditional document has reached its limits. We need flexible, self-contained information units that can be created independently and combined as needed. And we need an intelligent system to manage these information snippets.

Fit for the future

Each topic has an unambiguous address in the Space. That allows the required information to be flexibly compiled and published for the specific application: As a printed document, mobile on a smartphone or in an augmented reality application. New information such as customer comments, product ratings or feedback from service, can be added to the Information Space as a topic and assigned at any time.

The Information Space pools knowledge from the entire product life cycle in a single location. That is the future of successful technical documentation.
